10.   (Amended) A method for use in a CDMA code (division multiple access) communication system for transmitting information, said method comprising the steps of:

(a)   multiplying a code selected from a set of orthogonal codes by another code to obtain a spreading code; and

(b)   using, as the another code in step (a), a predetermined pseudo-random noise code or the pseudo-random noise code shifted in phase.